

Grammar based RNA structure prediction has been very successful but will typically be based on one pre-given grammar. This project proposes a genetic algorithm based search through RNA grammars for a grammar that works the best. This is challenging as it is difficult to formulate an efficient grammar and that sets of grammars could be very large.